

Chrome Extensions for Accessibility:

Available at the Google Chrome Store

Read and Write for Google by Texthelp – FREE version reads Google Docs aloud.

*if it's a Google Doc, and you can highlight the words, this will work for you. Full paid version will also read pdfs, highlight and translate within your document as well as provide word prediction for writing tasks. www.texthelp.com

Ginger for Gmail – online spell and grammar check for gmail only. FREE

www.gingersoftware.com

Select and Speak –by iSpeech – highlight and read any page that has selectable text. Use this for Khan Academy, or other non-flash based websites. FREE

*If it's on the web, and if you can highlight text with your cursor, this extension will work for you.

Readability – simplifies web pages for easier reading. FREE

Google Dictionary – highlight words within web pages for definition. FREE Bookshare Web Reader – opens and reads Bookshare Books. Requires Bookshare Individual membership.

Appwriter Cloud– highlights and reads text and provides writing support with word prediction and phonetic spelling support. FREE 30 day trial. $20 purchase.

TLDR – “Too long, didn’t read”. Autosummarizes web pages for easier reading. Choice of size of the summarization. FREE Speech Recognition Online – dictates text into fillable boxes on websites. FREE

Chrome Vox – screen reader. Reads aloud Menu items as well as body of text. Made for those with visual impairments, but useful for others too. FREE

<http://www.chrometoolbox.com/> Blog for new Chrome Accessibility Apps

<http://www.appsusergroup.org/presentations/google-special-needs> User Group for Google Apps and Extensions